Enter the top of the table with the month you would reckon the time from, and with your eye go down the same column under it till you come to the month you want. As for example: How many days from March 15 to October 15? Under March, in the top column or head line, and opposite to October, in the same column, you find 214 days for the answer.

If from the day of the month given, the number of days be required to a different day in any other month; in such cases, add or subtract so many days, as the date required exceeds or falls short of the date you begin with, from the number given by the table, and you will have the true answer respectively. And in Leap-year, observe to add a day to the number in the table, in all cases when the whole of February is included in the time wanted.

To find the New, Full, and Quarters of the MOON, in every month for ever.

Add the Epact for the year to the number over the month, (as shewn below) and subtract the sum from 30; but if it be more than 30, subtract it from 59; the remainder will shew the day of the change or new moon, to which add 7 1/2 days, and it will give the first quarter; 15 gives the full; 22 1/2 gives the last quarter. This is the moon's mean motion, and will never vary much from the true time.

An universal PRESERVATIVE against INFECTION :
By Dr. WINCESLAUS DOBRZENSKY.

WHOSOEVER converses with patients affected with any disease whatever, if he would preserve himself from infection, must be sure, as long as he abides within the sphere of the steams, never to swallow his spittle, but to spit it out, for I reasonably conceive that to be the part which first and most easily imbibes infection, and by that, swallowed, the infection is carried, as by a proper vehicle, into the stomach, where it works those dismal and fatal effects.

This sentence of his he grounds upon both his own experience, long tried for his own preservation, and on divers reasons set down by way of aphorisms from this hypothesis, v. z.

That most diseases, especially pestilential fevers, are infectious; that this proceeds from a seminal ferment, which is emitted by the patient by way of steams into the encompassing air, and so infects all things within a certain sphere or distance: this drawn into the mouth by the breath, is apt to infect the saliva or spittle, which being swallowed, infects the stomach, and so the rest of the body; but being spit out, frees the body from infection. And, therefore, he conceives that strong smelling and strong tasting substances kept in the mouth, and chewed to promote spitting, are of very good and necessary use for Physicians, Chirurgeons, Apothecaries, &c. that are necessitated to visit infected persons.

A plain

A plain and easy Method of measuring any piece of TIMBER or BRICK-WORK; also how to gauge any CASK, or measure a piece of GROUND.

1. Of Board and Superficial Measure.

SUPERFICIAL Measure is that which has length and breadth only, and is measured by the square foot, containing 144 inches; therefore, RULE, Multiply the length in inches by the breadth in inches, and divide by 144, the quotient gives the square feet, and the remainder is the square inches.

1. There is a board 9 feet 6 inches long, and 9 inches wide, I demand the content. Ans. 7 feet 18 inches.

By the Slip Rule.

Set the breadth of the board (viz. 9 inches) on the slip to the upper 12, next the edge of the rule; then against the length of the board (9 feet and half) in the same line on the rule you will find 7 feet and half a quarter, or 7 feet 18 inches.

2. How many bricks, 9 inches long and 4 inches wide, will pave a room 15 feet long, and 14 wide? Ans. 840.

Multiply the length 15 by the breadth 14, which gives 210 feet; this multiplied by 144 (the inches in a foot), gives 30,240 square inches; then multiply 9, the length of the brick, by 4, the breadth, which gives 36 square inches in one brick: divide therefore 30,240 by 36, and it gives 840, the bricks required. And thus for any thing of this sort.

2. Of Timber or Solid Measure.

In this sort of measure 1728 square inches make one foot; because 12 multiplied by 12, gives 144 superficial or square inches; and 144 multiplied by 12, gives 1728 solid inches. The common method to measure timber is thus:

With a small cord take the round or circumference of the tree, neither in the largest or smallest part; then double the said string into four parts, and apply it to any common 2-foot rule, and observe what it measures; for this is called the girt of the tree: then the rule is, multiply the girt by itself (which is called squaring the girt), and then multiply the product by the length of the tree in feet, and divide the product by 144, which gives the content in square feet, and the remainder is the square inches. Or otherwise multiply the square of the girt by the length in inches, and divide by 1728, which gives the content.

1. There is a tree fourteen inches clear * girt, and nine feet long, I demand the content?

Here

* The reason why this is named clear girt, is because it is customary to allow one inch for the bark in trees that are pretty large.

Here I multiply 14, the girt, by itself (that is 14), and the product is 196; this multiplied by 9, the length, gives 1764 feet, which divided by 144, gives twelve feet thirty-six inches, or twelve feet and a quarter.

By the Slip Rule.

Set the length (9) on the slip right against the 12, under the lower part of the slip on the rule (wrote girt line) then against the girt of the tree (14) on the girt line, you will find twelve and a quarter, the content, as before.

Of tapering Timber.

If the tree be very long and large at one end, and small at another, you may, by marking it with a piece of chalk any where in the middle, or any crooked place, measure it as two distinct pieces, in the manner before directed. Or if it runs straight, do thus:

Take the girt at two different places, neither at the largest nor smallest of all, but as judgment shall direct; then add these two girts together, and take the half of them for a mean girt, and proceed to multiply by the whole length, as before.

N. B. This is a common method, but very erroneous; for the right way is to multiply the one girt by the other, and extract the square root for a mean girt.

Thus a tree 20 inches girt at one end, and 40 at the other, (the mean girt is 30) and 9 feet long, contains, according to the customary method, 56 feet and a quarter; but, in reality, it contains not quite 50 feet, therefore is 6 feet and a quarter too much.

3. Of Brick-Work.

Brick-work is measured by the square rod, that is 5 yards and a half, or 16 feet and a half squared, that is, 272 $\frac{1}{4}$ square feet make one square rod of brick-work, at one brick and half thick, which is the standard for the thickness of all walls, to which brick work is reduced. But 272 feet being near enough for common use, it will be sufficient.

RULE. Multiply the length of any regular wall of one brick and half thick by the height, and divide by 272, gives the content in rods, and the remainder in square feet.

There is a wall 76 feet long, 9 feet high, and one brick and half thick, $\frac{1}{4}$ demand the content?

Multiply 76 by 9, and divide by 272, and the quotient gives 2 rods and 140 feet, viz. better than two rods and a half.

By the Slip.

Set 272 on the slip to the height 9 on the rule above it; then against 76, the length on the slip is rather better than two and half on the rule.

4. Of Walls being more or less than one brick and half thick to tell the Content.

Having found the content first of all for one brick and half thick, say thus: As the half bricks in the standard, viz. 3, are to the content at that thickness, so is the number of half bricks in the thickness of any wall to the content of the required wall.

Note, But as there is some trouble in this, and in some cases it will be very difficult for the learner to come to a true answer at two operations, I have here added a table, by which a piece of brick-work at any thickness may be done at one operation, by making the following numbers your divisors, viz.

Multiply the length of the wall by the height: then,

For 1	} Bricks thick, divide by	408
$1\frac{1}{2}$		272
2		204
$2\frac{1}{2}$		163
3		136
$3\frac{1}{2}$		116
4		102

Thus the wall in the foregoing example 76 feet long and 9 inches wide at one brick and half thick, is 2 rods and 140 feet: I demand its contents at 3 bricks thick?

Multiply the length by the height as before, and now, instead of dividing by 272, divide by 136 (the divisor in the table for 3 bricks thick), and you have for answer 5 rods 2 feet. And thus for any thickness, observing well the divisor.

5. Of Gauging.

The way to gauge any common square, or square cooler, or oblong square, is thus:

Multiply the length by the breadth in inches, then multiply that product by the depth, and divide by 282, and the quotient gives the content in ale gallons. If you divide by 2150, it gives the bushels.

Thus a cistern 60 inches long, 50 inches wide, and 40 inches deep, will contain 425 gallons, and about 55 bushels, three pecks.

1. Of Tubs or Round Figures.

Take the diameter, then square it (that is multiply it by itself), and divide the product by 359 for beer, 294 for wine, and 2737 for bushels.

Thus you will find a tub, whose diameter is 36 inches every where, and 50 inches deep, holds 278 gallons of ale, 294 wine, and 36 bushels and an half.

2. Of Tubs whose Diameters at the Bottom and Top are unequal.

The common way, like measuring timber, is to add both diameters together, and take the half for a mean diameter: though the right way is to multiply both diameters together, and extract the square root for a mean diameter, then proceed as before.

Of Casks.

Any common regular cask may be measured thus, provided both the head diameters are nearly equal.

First, square the bung diameter, and then multiply it by 2, to which add the square of the head diameter; then multiply this by the length of the cask, and divide by 1077 for beer, 882 for wine.

Thus you will find a cask, whose bung diameter is 28 inches, the head 25, and length 36 inches, to contain 73 ale, and 89 1-half wine gallons.

6. To measure any regular Square Piece of Ground.

Take a rod pole, viz. a pole of 5 yards and a half long, and measure the length of the place or field, and the breadth, which set down in rods; multiply them together, and divide by 160, (the square rods in an acre) gives the content in acres.

Thus if a yard be 16 rods long and 14 rods wide, it contains one acre, 2 rods, and 12 rods.

Abstract of an Act passed the last Session, for granting to his Majesty certain Duties on Licences to be taken out by all persons letting horses to hire for travelling in the manner therein after mentioned, and certain duties on all horses let to hire for the purpose of travelling post, and by time; and upon certain Carriages therein mentioned.

THE act begins with a recital of 19 Geo. III. cap. 51, and sets forth, that after the 1st of August next, the duties granted by the recited act shall be repealed.

It is then enacted, that from and after the 1st of August 1780, every person in Great Britain, who shall let to hire any horse for the purpose of travelling post by the mile, or from stage to stage, or being a person usually letting horses to hire, shall let to hire for a day, or any less period of time, any horse for drawing any coach or other carriage with four wheels, or any chaise or chair with two wheels, or any other carriage for which a duty of excise is made payable, shall pay annually the sum of five shillings for a licence for that purpose.

And it is also enacted, that one halfpenny shall be paid for every mile such carriages shall travel, to be paid by the owner or owners respectively, the said duties to be under the management of the said commissioners for the stamp duties. The penalty on persons letting out horses to travel post, without a licence, is five pounds for every such offence. No person is to keep more than one inn, &c. for letting horses by virtue of one licence. All licensed inn-keepers, &c. are to cause the words LICENSED TO LET POST HORSES to be painted or written in legible characters, either on a sign hanging out, or in some visible place in the front of the house, stables, or out offices; and all innkeepers who furnish carriages to travel post, are to affix their names, and their places of abode, on some conspicuous part thereof under the like penalties of five pounds. Innkeepers also who furnish carriages to travel for a day, or less period of time, are to affix, upon some

The commissioners of the stamp duties are to deliver, to every person taking out a licence, printed or written papers, (entitled stamp office weekly account) in which is to be inserted the day of the week, and blanks left for the number of horses and miles, and for the day of the month, and for the names of the postillions or drivers employed; and also a number of tickets, on which shall be printed or written, the words STAMP OFFICE, and 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, or 6, in figures, as the tickets may be intended to denote the numbers, and likewise the word MILES, except where the horses are hired for a day, or any less period of time, and then, instead of the word MILES, the words, FOR A DAY shall be inserted, and also the amount of the duty, at and after the rate of one shilling and sixpence for each horse, according to the number of horses expressed by figures on such ticket. Postmasters, &c. on receiving their first licence, are to give security for the redelivery of tickets unaccounted for, and postmasters, &c. letting out horses to travel post, are to receive of the persons hiring the same, 1d. for every mile each horse is to travel, under a penalty of ten pounds. Travellers are to deliver their tickets at the first turnpike they shall pass through, and postmasters letting out horses to travel by the day, &c. shall receive of the persons hiring them, 1d. for every mile each horse is to travel, or 1s. 6d. for each horse, where the distance shall not be ascertained.

The day tickets are to be delivered at the first turnpike, in return for which the gatekeeper is to give an exchange ticket, which is to be shewn at every turnpike during that day, and no persons are to take off the brass, or tin plate, before mentioned, in order to evade payment of the duty, under a penalty of five pounds; and the same fine is laid on the drivers of carriages passing through any turnpike without such plate. Horses hired for any less time than two days, are to be deemed to be hired for one day. Persons residing in London and Westminster are, the first Tuesday and Wednesday in every month, or at such other times as the commissioners shall appoint, on public notice given in the London Gazette, to bring in their accounts for the four weeks, ending on the Saturday preceding such day of delivery, and shall within eight days thereafter, pay such sums of money as shall appear to be due thereon; but persons not residing in London or Westminster, or within five miles thereof, or within the bills of mortality, are to produce and deliver the accounts for the weeks, ending on the Saturday preceding such delivery, at such place as shall be appointed at the foot of the licence granted to them, and afterwards at the foot of the receipt given them.

The act is not to extend to horses used in hackney coaches, but all horses hired by the mile, or stage, are to be deemed hired to travel post.

Gatekeepers fraudulently accepting less than they are authorized to demand, are to forfeit twenty shillings, and on the death of any licenced postmaster, &c. his executors, &c. shall not be liable to any penalty for letting letting horses to hire, provided they take out a licence within thirty days after his death.

It is also enacted, that every person who shall keep a diligence or post coach, for the purpose of conveying in the inside thereof any number of passengers, not exceeding four, or who shall keep any coach or other carriage to be employed as a public stage coach, shall pay annually the sum of five shillings for a licence for that purpose, under the penalty of five pounds, and the licence is to be renewed ten days previous to the expiration. Only one diligence is to be kept by the said licence, and all licensed persons are to pay one halfpenny for every mile their diligences shall travel. All diligences, &c. going to or from London or Westminster, are to be licensed at the Stamp office. The name of the owner of every diligence, &c. is to be painted on the outside of each door, and the duties are to be paid on the first Monday in every month, the proprietors are to give seven days notice before they discontinue their licence, and a penalty of fifty pounds is imposed on any one who shall be convicted of forging the said licence.

All penalties are to be sued for within three months, one moiety of the fine to the King, and the other moiety to the prosecutor.

The following MILITARY ARTICLES cannot be deemed uninteresting at this juncture, when the whole kingdom seems changing its civil into a martial appearance.

Rules proper and necessary to be observed by the Officers previous to the regiments marching to the field to be reviewed.

AS soon as the long roll beats, and the men are fallen in, the officers of each company are strictly to examine the mens' cloaths, arms, and accoutrements, and see that they are in good order, and put on to the best advantage; as also a good flint in each piece, and report to the commanding officer.

The Adjutant should be careful in fixing the men, and telling them off in wings, grand divisions, sub-divisions, odd and even files, as also the six center files (which should always keep shouldered while going through the firings) as guard de reserve to the colours, which when done, he should inform the commanding officer that the men are ready for his orders or inspection.

The officers and men should be enjoined (by the commanding officer) to the strictest steadiness, silence, and attention, as nothing contributes more to their soldier like appearance.

* As the remaining part of the Review depends entirely on the plan for the year, or the commanding officer, it was thought unnecessary to add any thing further.

N. B. It is certain that were commanding officers of regiments to follow as near as possible one steady and uniform plan of discipline, such regiments knowing what they are about, would always appear to much greater advantage than they otherwise do.

Regulations of Honors to be paid by his Majesty's Forces to the General Officers of the Army, by an Order from Court.

GENERALS of horse and foot upon all occasions to have the march beat to them, and are to be saluted by all officers, the colours excepted. They are likewise entitled to a guard of a Captain Lieutenant and Ensign with 50 men, with colours and standards.

Lieutenant Generals of horse and foot upon all occasions to be saluted by all officers; they are to have three ruffles given them, and are intitled to a guard of a Lieutenant and 30 men.

Major Generals are to have two ruffles, and not to be saluted by any officers, but are entitled to a guard of an Ensign and 20 men.

Brigadiers one ruffle, and are entitled to a guard of a Serjeant and 11 men.

A Lieutenant General, who is a Commander in Chief, by virtue of a commission from us, is to have the same respect paid him on all occasions as a General of horse and foot, a Major General as a Lieutenant General, and a Brigadier as a Major General.

All Governors, that are not General Officers, shall in all places where they are Governors, have one ruffle given them, with rested arms; but for those that have no commission as Governors, no drum shall beat.

A Lieutenant Governor, or the officer who commands in his absence, shall have the main guard turned out to him with shouldered arms.

A Town or Fort Major, in a garrison, is to command according to the rank he now has or has had in the army, and if he never had any other but that of Town or Fort Major, he is to command as youngest Captain.

Honors paid Governors, General, General Officers, Colonels, Lieutenant Colonels, &c. in garrison.

ALL Governors, whose commissions in the army are under the degree of General Officers, shall have in their own garrisons, all the guards turn out with rested arms, and beat one ruffle; and though the main guard turns out with rested arms every time he passes, yet they give him the compliment of drum but once a day; but all the other guards beat as often as he appears near them.

If they are General Officers likewise, they are then to have the further compliment paid them by the several beatings of the drum, as is practised in the army, and are as follow:

To Generals of the horse and foot the guards turn out, rest their arms, beat a march, and the officers salute.

To Lieutenant Generals they turn out, rest their arms, beat three ruffles, and the officers salute.

To Major Generals they turn out with rested arms, beat two ruffles, but no salute.

To Brigadier Generals they turn out with rested arms only; but of late they have added one ruffle to the compliment.

To Colonels their own quarter-guards turn out and rest their arms once a day, after which they only turn out with ordered arms.

To Lieutenant Colonels their own quarter-guard turns out with shouldered arms once a day, at other times they only turn out and stand by their arms.

To Majors their own guard turn out with ordered arms once a day, at all other times they stand by their arms.

When a Lieutenant Colonel or Major commands a regiment, their own quarter guard pay them the same compliment as is ordered for the Colonel.

All centries rest their arms to Generals, Colonels, Lieutenant Colonels, and Majors; this ceremony is the same both at camp and garrison.

The main guard are to rest their arms to the Governor, and pay him the compliment with the drum as before directed; if he continues to walk on the parade, or before the guard, they may lay down their arms.

All centries are to rest their arms as he passes them, or comes near their posts.

A General of horse and foot, when in garrison, has a serjeant and two centries at his door; all Lieutenant Generals have the same.

A Major General is to have two centries at his door, and the same compliment paid him by the guards as in camp.

A Brigadier is to have one centry at his door, and one ruffle from all the guards in garrison.

All Colonels, or officers who command battalions, are to have one centry, which they are to take from their own regiments; but those Colonels who have no regiments in town, are to have the centry from the main guard, or one of the port guards, if their lodgings lie more convenient for them.

The main guard is to turn out and stand by their arms once a day to all Colonels; but all other guards must order their arms for them as often as they pass. The main guard is to pay no compliment to the Lieutenant Colonel or Major, but other guards are to stand by their arms for them.

Lieutenant Colonels are to be treated in their garrisons as Colonels, and the Majors Commandant as Lieutenant Colonels, unless their rank in the army entitles them to a greater compliment; but when either of them command the garrison, they are then treated in all respects as Governor.

When the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, and the Major Commandant are absent, or by sickness rendered incapable of acting, the eldest officer in the garrison is to take the command upon him, who is called Commandant of the Garrison, and has all the respect paid him by the guards as Governor, except that of the drum, unless his rank in the army entitles him to it before,

Engineer's Rank.

Chief as Colonel.

Director as Lieutenant Colonel.

Sub-director as Major.

Engineer in ordinary as Captain.

Engineer extraordinary as Captain Lieutenant.

Sub-engineer as Lieutenant.

Practitioner-engineer as Ensign.

In Addition to the Extract from the new Post-horse Act, (see page 148) published lately, our Readers are desired to observe, that horses drawing hearses are not chargeable with the duty, being carriages on which no duty of excise is payable; but that those drawing mourning coaches, must pay the duty. That when horses are hired for draught for the day, or any period of time (alias an airing) and the hirer does not chuse to take a DAY TICKET, the distance must be ascertained, and he must pay one penny per mile for each horse, for the whole distance, both forward and backward.
